

“Law Firm Management : Do You Have A Competitive Edge Over Your Competitors?”
A Seminar with Brian Rogers

Who Should Attend? Anyone who is responsible for managing a law firm

Why attend? Every business manager should have a good understanding of general business management and this includes those managing law firms. The legal profession is currently going through an unprecedented period of change, which has so far seen non-lawyers join the ranks of lawyers as partners and the appointment of new regulatory bodies ; the next phase is 'Tesco Law' and any firm that is not ready for this and the competition it will bring will not survive.

This seminar provides an insight into:

- Law firm management;
- Some of the lessons learnt from the recession;
- How firms should prepare themselves for the future.

Brian Rogers is the Operations Director at Lewis Hymanson Small and has been a senior executive within the legal profession for over 17 years dealing with all aspects of law firm management. He presents training seminars to various organisations including law societies, professional groups, law firms, and various clients and provides firms with advice on a range of management issues. In his spare time Brian runs his own software company that supplies a web based risk and compliance management system into law firms.
